CHARACTER OF RUCH TO BE CONSIDERED

Judge Instructs to Return Sealed Verdict If Finish at Night

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 12. (AP)—After Roy St. Lewis, United States district attorney closed arguments late Friday for the government in the trial of six citizens of Tillman county on charges of conspiring to violate the prohibition laws, Judge Edgar M. Vaughn read his instructions to the jury which began its deliberations after dinner.

The jury was to deliberate until 10 p. m. and if a verdict be reached by that time it will be sealed and presented to the court at 9 o'clock Saturday morning. The case has been under way since December 1. In instructing the jury Judge Vaughn told them that under the charges only one definite conspiracy is alleged and that any defendants who may be convicted must be found guilty "beyond a reasonable doubt."

The court declared that "Franklin" testimony and character of Bud Walls (whose confession implicated the defendants) does not appeal to me" and he admonished the jury to "consider Walls' testimony with caution" pointing out he had been in the penitentiary three times.

The court said the character of (Continued on Page Four)

LEWIS FORMALLY ACCEPTS PRIZE

American Novelist Defends Self of Charges of Being 'Anarchist'

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 12. (AP)—Sinclair Lewis formally accepted the 1930 Nobel prize for literature Friday, meanwhile jabbing right and left at certain American institutions and Americans.

The creator of "Babbalanza" and other things particularly a part of American life was careful to say his remarks should not be regarded as "attacks."

Lewis vigorously defended himself against charges of being a "liberal anarchist." He described in vivid terms his contemporaries in writing with a word of praise for each.

Theodore Dreiser, "marching alone, usually unappreciated," and H. L. Mencken "with his boisterous 'jeering' came under review." "I do not imagine these two," said Lewis, "being present at the serenely Athenian dinners of the academy, a perfect example of the divorce in America of intellectual life from all our standards of intelligence and reality."

He spoke of Ernest Hemingway, Thomas Wolfe and Thornton Wilder, too.

"I salute them all," he said.

FORMER JUDGE LINDSEY

TRIAL FORMER JUDGE LINDSEY SET WEDNESDAY

Appears Friday But Attorney Enters Motion To Dismiss Charges

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. (AP)—Former Judge Ben E. Lindsey's guilt or innocence in the disorder he precipitated at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine last Sunday will not be determined until next Wednesday afternoon.

Judge Lindsey appeared for trial Friday, but his attorney, Arthur Garfield Hays, entered a motion to dismiss the complaint on the ground it was based on two different statutes without being specific as to either. Magistrate Dwyer wanted time to consider the brief and continued the case to Dec. 17.

The former children's court judge is charged both with disorderly conduct and disturbance of religious services.

Bishop William T. Manning of New York, whose sermon in the cathedral attacking Lindsey's writings on companionate marriage and his character caused Lindsey to speak out and demand a hearing, was subpoenaed by Hays, but was not in court. It was understood he was readily accessible in the event he was needed. He is suffering from a cold.

AMUCK, MAN KILLS WIFE AND SUICIDES

Apparently Insane, He Hits Three Others of Family With Hammer

PAWNEE, Okla., Dec. 12. (AP)—In an apparent fit of insanity J. R. Cates, 49 shot and killed his wife and himself here Friday after viciously injuring three other members of his family with a hammer. His son, Haskell Cates; his daughter, Mrs. E. J. Price, and her husband, suffered fractured skulls and were in a critical condition at a Cushing hospital. Price's condition was regarded as the most serious. She underwent a blood transfusion late Friday in an effort to save her life.

Cates, manager of a creamery station here, struck down his son and Price in the station. Crossing the street to his daughter's home, he attacked her with a hammer. He picked up his three-year-old granddaughter and took her in his motor car to his own home. The child escaped unharmed.

He seized a rifle after entering his own home and killed his wife, shooting himself immediately afterward.

A third man escaped, after officers had shot at him five times. Federal authorities were notified. The three men, riding in a sedan registered from Lamesa, Texas, visited two filling stations here and gave bills in exchange for automobile fuel purchased. The bills were of such crude workmanship that the filling station operators immediately notified police.

GROUP MISSING SINCE FEBRUARY

Four Bodies and Part of Fifth Found; Search For Sixth

WILLISTON, N. D., Dec. 12. (AP)—A halting, tangled tale by a 22-year old farmer told piecemeal and with unexplained variations and gaps, Friday night had revealed the slaying of an entire family near Schafer, N. D., but left the identity of the slayer and a motive for the crime obscure.

Bodies of four of the victims and parts of a fifth, all members of the Albert E. Haven family, were recovered Thursday while search for a sixth, that of Mrs. Haven, was being pressed Friday night, after the young farmer, Charles Rannon, had told officers where they were buried.

Rannon told a weird story of how the family was slain by Mrs. Haven with a hammer during a sudden fit of insanity and said he helped her bury the victims, but a short time later admitted that her body, too, was buried on the farm. Despite this the youth steadfastly declined to admit he was responsible for the slayings. He was under almost constant guard.

Pharmacist Testifies Major Obtained Mercury When Wife Was Stricken

CONFLICTS EMERGE IN TESTIMONIES

Defendant Says Wife Did Not Accompany Him to San Antonio

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Dec. 12. (AP)—A statement alleged to have been made to department of justice agents by Major Charles A. Shepard prior to his arrest for the alleged poisoning murder of his wife was produced against him in his murder trial late Friday as Miss Grace Brandon, the government's star witness, left the witness stand after two days of testimony.

In the statement Shepard was quoted as saying he had never discussed the subject of divorce with his wife and that nobody had ever come into their lives to cast a shadow on their marital relations.

Further, the army medical officer was quoted as declaring he never had obtained any bichloride of mercury from the dispensary at Fort Riley, Kan., where Mrs. Shepard died in 1929.

This statement was in direct conflict with testimony in the trial by the Fort Riley army pharmacist that Shepard drew supplies of mercury on several occasions. (Continued on Page Three.)

BEGIN CENSORSHIP THROUGHOUT CUBA

First Sign Given Republic Constitutional Guarantees Are Lifted

HAVANA, Dec. 12. (AP)—For the second time since November, congressional elections censorship on all forms of communications entering or leaving Cuba was imposed Friday. It was the first outward sign the republic was given that constitutional guarantees, suspended Thursday afternoon by presidential decree, had been withdrawn throughout the island.

Imposition of the censorship represented another drastic step by President Machado to extinguish sparks of political discontent, which have threatened to burst into a devastating flame.

The censorship may continue in force until well toward the middle of February, when the 60-day authorization granted the president by congress will expire.

The suspension of guarantees affects six articles of the Cuban constitution.

Inviolability of the home, freedom of speech, right of hearing within 24 hours after arrest, communication of mail and private documents, privileges of changing residence at will and right of assembly are removed from those living in Cuba.

While President Machado was taking these drastic steps to keep down revolt against his administration and insure order during the tourist season, which is one of Cuba's leading businesses, opposition circles were busy circulating a fresh series of manifestos in criticism of Machado's handling of the situation.

EVADING PAYMENT OF INCOME TAXES IS LOSING GAME

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12. (AP)—Evading payment of income taxes apparently is becoming a losing game. This was shown Friday in a report that last year $13,937,670 was collected from the delinquent income tax payers.

In addition, the internal revenue bureau collected $8,933,263 from delinquents in miscellaneous taxes, making the total from such sources $22,870,933. This was more than twice as much as the previous twelve months and $6,335,000 more than received from delinquents in any previous year.

A. E. Dunsmore, chief of the accounts and collections unit, explained much attention has been given to devising means of trapping evaders and securing proper payment from those who pay too little through honest error.

SPANISH TROOPS REBEL; MOVE ON LOYAL GARRISON

Are Joined Enroute By Many Citizens; Fear Battle Imminent

GOVERNMENT HOLDS ALL-NIGHT SESSION

Troops Over Spain Mobilized and Sent to Revolt Centers

MADRID, Dec. 12. (Saturday) (AP)—Rebelling soldiers who turned against the government Friday at Jaca were marching for Huesca early Saturday, joined en route by many civilians. It was feared a battle was imminent at Huesca, where the loyal garrison already had left its barracks to fight the mutineers. The revolt had been long expected because of political dissension.

At Madrid the government held an extraordinary all-night session of the cabinet to discuss the situation. A government spokesman expressed belief all the garrisons in northern Spain might be counted upon except that at Jaca, where at least 2,900 rebelled.

There were rumors here, however, which members of the cabinet refused to discuss that other troops had joined the revolt Saturday morning troops all over Spain were being mobilized and entrained hurriedly for Huesca, Ciudad Real and other points which have been hot-beds of attempted uprising in the past which are reported to have been excited by the Jaca revolt.

Friday night, with a strict censorship imposed throughout the country no authentic account of the revolt could be obtained here. The premier, after an emergency meeting. (Continued on Page Four.)

STATEMENT MADE

Mother's Act Brings Tragedy to Their Lives

About the time Mrs. Shepard was stricken with the fatal illness. The alleged statements concerning Shepard's marital relations, obtained with trial testimony of Mrs. Brandon that Shepard fell in love with her some months before the death of his wife. The trial records also contained a letter identified as having been written by Shepard a few weeks before his wife became ill, advising Miss Brandon that Mrs. Shepard had refused to give him a divorce.

Mrs. James Leander, government stenographer, read the purported statement from notes which she testified were taken when Shepard was questioned by federal agents at Denver, March 17, 1930, a few hours before he was placed under arrest.

Only half of the statement had been completed when court was adjourned. Shepard was quoted as saying his wife drank heavily and he had tried to dissuade her. Describing the evening of May 10, 1929, when she became ill in their quarters at Fort Riley, Shepard was quoted as saying Mrs. Shepard collapsed after eating some sandwiches which she had purchased.

The statement said he decided she had drunk some "bad liquor." Shepard was quoted as saying his wife did not accompany him to San Antonio, Texas, in the fall of 1928 when he went there to take a flight surgeon's course at Brooks field, because she believed her presence might interfere with his studies. It was on this visit to San Antonio that Shepard became acquainted with Miss Brandon to whom he became engaged to marry after his wife's death.

Efforts to show that federal agents intimidated Miss Brandon and attempted to influence her testimony regarding her love affair with Major Shepard, featured her final hours on the stand.

The girl denied she was coerced by the agents. Most of the day was spent with the defense reading love letters written by Miss Brandon to Major Shepard. She wept at times and turned her face away from the spectators, resting her blonde head on her hands or inclining it on Judge Richard J. Hopkins' bench.

questioning while search was being made for Mrs. Haven's grave. The Haven family had been missing from their home since Feb. 10, last, while Bannan and his father have occupied the farm since that time, claiming they had rented the place. The elder Bannan disappeared six weeks ago but officials Friday said they had learned he wrote his son Dec. 2, from Oswego, Ore.

The bodies and parts of another recovered Thursday were found in a single grave under a little lean-to of the barn. They were those of the elder Haven, Daniel, 19, and Leland, 16. Legs also found in the grave were believed to belong to a three-year-old Haven boy. The body of a three-months old girl was recovered from a refuse pile, while search continued Friday night for that of Mrs. Haven.

Curious examination of the bodies authorities said, disclosed the victims apparently had been beaten to death with some blunt instrument. Bannan told searchers where to find a hammer, which he said, Mrs. Haven used in attacking her family.

Authorities said charges of first degree murder would be filed against Charles Bannan and his father. Search for the elder Bannan is being pressed in the west. Young Bannan's mother is a school teacher.

Men Were Friendly Before Shooting Defense Testifies

DENTON, Dec. 12, (AP)—Testimony to show that friendly relations existed between John Rippy and J. I. Hornsby, the man Rippy was charged with killing, was introduced by the defense Friday when it placed six witnesses on the stand, after the state rested its case at 3 p. m. The defense apparently sought to controvert testimony in the state's chain of circumstantial evidence.

Ohio officials say the traffic light use a cure for traffic troubles on state highways has "proved worse than the ailment."

Prisoner for Murder Of Girl Confesses Slaying of Youth

DETROIT, Dec. 12, (AP)—Chief of Detectives Edward A. Miller Friday announced the solution of the killing 31 months ago of a five year old boy through a confession in prison of a man serving a life sentence for murder of a 15-year old girl last fall.

The convict, Ralph James, who pleaded guilty to killing Alice Collier because she resisted his advances, admitted to two Detroit officers in Marquette branch prison, Miller said, that he killed William Weeks, Jr., and threw the little boy's body in Rouge river where it was found on May 7, 1928, four days after he disappeared.

MAN WOUNDED IN KANSAS WANTED FOR WIRT KILLING

Is Identified as D. I. Davis, Also Wanted In Amarillo

AMARILLO, Dec. 12, (P)—Positive identification of the man wounded at Wichita, Kansas in a running gun fight with officers, as D. I. Davis of Amarillo, has been made both by finger prints and by photographs, according to information given out by officers here Friday night.

The wounded man, together with his brother, Colquitt Davis, is wanted at Ardmore, Okla., in connection with the fatal shooting at Wirt, Okla., Wednesday afternoon of Con Kelsey, deputy sheriff, and the wounding of Vernon Cason, undersheriff. They are also wanted here in connection with the slaying recently of Harold A. McCarrick, grocer.

WICHITA, Kan., Dec. 12, (P)—A man giving the name of Jack Carter, 22, was shot and probably fatally wounded, and Dr. A. J. Bowman, a bystander, was shot and wounded slightly, as Carter engaged in a running gun battle with police officers on a downtown street here late Friday afternoon. Carter a short time previously had entered the office of Dr. H. C. Curtis, in a downtown building, with two companions and asked to have a wound dressed. Dr. Curtis went into an adjoining room and called police after the men told conflicting stories as to how the wound was sustained.

Glenn Davis, a city detective, answered the call and took the three men into custody. After leaving the office one of the men drew two revolvers and covered the detective, forcing him to lead the way downstairs. O. W. Hobbs, an employee of a lumber company, met the group in the hall and was forced to accompany them.

After descending the stairway to the fifth floor, Davis dove into the open door of an office, and the men bolted, leaving Hobbs in the hall. Davis called for reinforcements and traced the men to a garage at William and Water streets, but blocks from the busiest intersection in the city. Carter was driving from the garage when Davis opened fire. Carter's two companions escaped, but Carter was captured.

Police are checking to ascertain if Carter's wounds may have been inflicted while participating in a robbery.

OKLAHOMA PROHIBITION

P. V. Ruch, county attorney alleged by government counsel to have "prostituted his office and lived a lie" apparently had been that of "a man who has lived a clean life" at least until the time of the alleged conspiracy.

He stated that much of the testimony regarding Ruch's part in the alleged liquor ring had been conflicting and circumstantial, but pointed out that if the jury should find the testimony of the county attorney's chief accusers corroborated by other witnesses and that the circumstances properly linked up the circumstantial evidence against the defendant, he could be found guilty of the charges.

The jurist pointed out that the defense claims there were several conspiracies in none of which Ruch participated.

Judge Vaughn went so far as to state that if Ruch had actually conspired to kill Wills as was stated in government testimony, that would not be a concern of the jury, "unless the act could be connected directly with the liquor conspiracy charged in the indictment."

The court instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty in the case of Lee Slade, Chickasha motor car mortgage man. He previously had sustained a demurrer to the evidence in the case.

Instructions as to Dorsey Parnell, Jake Berk, Gordon Hays, Jake Streiber and John Bellah were similar to those for Ruch except that the jury was given leeway favorable to Streiber and Bellah.

The instructions regarding Ruch and Parnell were construed so as to involve these defendants directly with the activities of sheriff C. A. Wages and constable Robert Rogers, who pleaded guilty with Wills.

TRAFFIC ROUTE

ing that the proposed route is the most feasible one from the east, and that a concerted, intelligently directed campaign will be the most effective means of securing the desired end.

Various committees made reports on work done since the last meeting. C. O. Ziegler reported for his group that Little Rock is the logical terminus for traffic from the east, and that part of it should be diverted over the DeQueen route. He also pictured the benefits to be derived from tourist traffic which other towns are now enjoying.

A signboard committee was appointed to see that signs are put up along the route designated, these boards to serve the purpose of advertising both the cities traversed as well as the route.

DeQueen was selected for the next meeting city, and the date set for January 15. A vote of thanks was given at the luncheon to R. L. Pethybridge of the Gibraltar hotel, and G. L. Wood of the Lamar Theatre for courtesies extended to those attending the meeting.

SPANISH TROOPS

ing of the cabinet, announced the situation was in hand and that the rebels were fleeing to the French border, 30 miles away.

In the meantime, various unconfirmed rumors reaching Madrid characterized the revolt as important and said Major Ramon Franco, Spanish "ace" aviator who recently was imprisoned for disobedience but escaped, was one of the leaders.

A dispatch from Barcelona Friday said authorities there had been informed Franco was one of the leaders of the rebellious garrison. The garrison at Jaca, said to be one of the strongest fortresses in northern Spain, was variously estimated at from 3,000 to 6,000 infantrymen and artillerymen. Jaca is in high country near the Pyrenees and commands the base of one of the passes into France.

Hardly had word of the revolt been received at Madrid than every military establishment in the north was active. Troop trains were rushed toward Jaca and a squadron of fighting planes under one of the highest officers in the air service, was ordered to the frontier. Conscription was established immediately and even the most harmless messages were subject to delay or suppression. At first, persons in Madrid were able to reach points outside of the country by telephone, but this also was subject to censorship and calls were interrupted or cancelled without warning.

Rumors that all was not right in the provinces had been reaching Madrid for weeks, and the government was ready with an emergency plan to cope with the emergency. Thousands of troops were en route to Jaca within a few hours after the first signal of trouble. Officials gave out little news. It was known, however, that the rebels, after turning the guns of the fortress on Jaca, had established a base in the town.

Five Soldiers Killed
MADRID, Dec. 12, (P)—Five soldiers are reported to have been killed at Jaca by rebel forces, who are said to be marching toward Huesca. Major Ramon Franco, Spain's premier aviator, is reported to be at the head of the revolting troops.

The government called an extraordinary meeting of the cabinet at midnight to consider the situation. The five soldiers killed at Jaca were a major, a sergeant, a corporal and two privates of the civil guard.

Revolters Hold Stronghold
PARIS, Dec. 12, (P)—French military men said Friday night Spanish soldiers who rebelled at Jaca chose their spot admirably. They described Jaca as one of the strongest fortresses of Europe, known among soldiers as the "Verdun of Spain."

Should the rebels succeed in establishing a powerful base at Jaca they would command virtually two-thirds of the Franco-Spanish frontier, according to the French observers, while should they be defeated they have merely to disarm and slip across the frontier into France.

Jaca has been used as a transfer point when garrisons were changed in various towns of northern Spain. The troops were kept there a few days, refreshed and refitted and then sent to their new base.

Argument Near End In Murder Case

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 12, (P)—Arguments were being completed Friday night in the trial of Donald Walker, charged in connection with the death of Daniel Uhr in his home here Oct. 14.

J. Franklin Speers, defense attorney, filed a motion asking that the first and third counts of the indictments be quashed. The motion was granted. The first count charged Walker with the murder as a principal and the third that he acted as an accomplice in obtaining the ax which was used in killing Uhr.

CONGRESS DEFERS RELIEF ACTION

House Refuses to Accept Senate's Emergency Public Works Bill

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12, (P)—Final congressional action on legislation to relieve drought stricken farmers and the unemployment situation has been put off until next week due to opposition in the house to the senate's stand on both matters.

The house Friday refused to accept senate amendments to the $115,000,000 emergency public works appropriation bill, and made plans to consider its own $30,000,000 drought loan fund bill Monday in preference to the $60,000,000 one of the senate.

Senate amendments prohibiting the president from interchanging allocations of funds under the emergency appropriation and limiting employment to local workers drew house opposition in both parties. An amendment to make the fund available until expended also is opposed, President Hoover having asked it to be applicable for only six months.

The administration looks on deletion of the section conferring on the president authority to interchange allocations as a move which will freeze the appropriations to certain works and reduce actual relief, but also as one which will relieve executives of much responsibility which they had been willing to assume to produce as much employment as possible. The measure was sent to conference and it may be possible for the conferees to agree at a meeting Saturday. Final action, however, will not come before next week.

Oil Companies Are Fined For Violating Oil Proration Order

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 12, (P)—Five fines totaling $2,500 had been assessed late Friday against the Century Petroleum corporation and three totaling $1,500 against the Marco Oil and Royalty company as the state corporation commission heard citations charging violation of the state oil proration order.

The Century company was fined $500 and costs on each of four additional counts Friday, after being penalized $250 and costs on one count Thursday. All of the counts charge the companies of producing more oil from their wells in the Oklahoma City field than allowed by the orders of the commission, promulgated under the oil conservation law of 1915.

MARTIN GIVEN 99 YEARS IN PEN

BIG SPRINGS, Texas, Dec. 12, (P)—Jim Martin was found guilty of murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Lavelle Gison, and given 99 years imprisonment by a jury here Friday. Gison and Martin were employed in an oil field near here at the time of the homicide October 26.

President Doumergue Takes Steps to Pacify Warring Political Party

PARIS, Dec. 12, (AP)—President Gaston Doumergue Friday took the big stick of parliamentary dissolution out of the glass case in which it has been since 1877 and the warring political parties of the chamber of deputies, suddenly pacified, agreed to grant at least a measure of support to a cabinet headed by Senator Theodore Steeg. As a result, M. Steeg told the president Friday night he would probably have his ministry ready for presentation at the Elysee palace some time Saturday afternoon. It was the eighth day of the ministerial crisis brought about by overthrow of the Tardieu government in the senate December 4, and the 15th cabinet resignation during the seven years of M. Doumergue's presidency. Until late Friday afternoon it appeared no solution could be found and parliamentarians seriously were considering possibility of a dissolution and new elections.

At the THEATERS RETURN ENGAGEMENT AT LAMAR

JOHN CRAWFORD, JOHN MACK BROWN and RICARDO CORTES in "MONTANA MOON" "Ride 'em cowboy!"

You'll whoop with joy when you see and hear the cavalcade of cowboys galloping over the plains in "Montana Moon," the first musical-western ever screened, which opens a one day return engagement at the Lamar Theatre today with Joan Crawford in the starring role. A beautiful picture, this. With the great, rugged open spaces for a background, it brings rare pictorial charm to the screen and provides a setting of grandeur to Miss Crawford's excellent performance.

As the city flapper who gets her man out where the West begins, Joan is more appealing than ever before, refreshing in the out-of-door atmosphere and completely presented "Aunt Lucia" here last fall, is in the city and will probably make arrangements for the production of another play of a similar nature some time during the holidays.

The two men arrested Thursday night by officers Gus Cochran and Newt Baker, and placed in the city jail on a charge of attempted theft of gasoline, were turned over to the county authorities Friday.

A tufted squirrel, one of the very few of this species ever seen in this section, is now on exhibition in the window at Lindsay's Sporting Goods store. It was sent to Joe Gorman by his brother, who lives in Arizona, and who is a most skilled taxidermist. These squirrels are found only in hilly country, it was stated.

Jess Alford left Saturday for Dallas, where he goes to put a number of his bronze turkeys in a turkey show that is to be held in the poultry building at the State Fair grounds, next Wednesday to Sunday. It is expected that more than 300 turkeys will compete in the show.

J. P. Foster reported to the police station Friday that four cases of toilet samples, two pairs of trousers and some other articles were stolen from his car Thursday night while it was parked on North Twenty-sixth street. One case of the samples was later recovered.

A manager of one of the local grocery stores who has long been annoyed by petty thieving, Thursday caught six negroes and three more Friday, taking small amounts of groceries. He gave them a lecture and turned them loose, but threatened them with prosecution if caught again.

Mr. John Cheavens of Trujillo, Peru, and her mother, Mrs. H. J. Morgan, of Amarillo, who have been visiting friends in Paris, left Friday for Amarillo, where Mrs. Cheavens will spend a short time before rejoining her husband, who is interested in copper mining in Peru. Miss Van Dyke's Dance Program Well Received

Large crowds attended the Lamar Theatre both Thursday and Friday evenings when Dorothy VanDyke, director of a School of the Dance, presented two programs featuring advanced students the first evening, and junior pupils Friday. Appreciative reception was given the numbers which were effectively staged with a cyclorama curtain as background; and clever lighting enhanced the colorful costumes.

Thursday evening the high lights of the program included an Argentine tango by James Frazier and Dorothy VanDyke, and an adagio number by Clifton Withers and Little Grady Cecile Wheat. Other numbers were much applauded were a gypsy dance and a buck and wing tap by Marian Wagner, an eccentric tap dance by Johnnie Loyless, a Hindu number by Inez Frazier, and an Apache interpretation by Clifton Withers and Louise Gaston. Miss Gaston also appeared solo in an Egyptian dance.

Tom Duncan in a stepping tap opened Friday evening's program, and Frazier and Miss VanDyke appeared next in a Hoosier hop, followed by Mildred Strong in an acrobatic clown dance. The Apache dance was repeated by request, and Mary Alice Thebo gave a Denishawn plastic interpretation. An eccentric tap by John Lawless, "Breakaway" tap by Maria Wagner, a Grecian chorus as background for the finale featuring Jane Browning, Elizabeth Anne Fields in a toe number and Billie Jo Simpson and June Barnhill of Hugo, were also included.

The accompaniments were played by Miss Mae Rogers Smith, Miss Bonnie Mae Wheat, and the orchestra, directed by Mrs. Tom Duncan.

FEEN-A-MINT DRIVE SUCCESS

Combination With Aspergum Nets Half Million Units Sale

Despite the existing conditions in retail drug sales the recent "Feen-a-mint-Aspergum" combination drive went over the top to the tune of nearly a half million packages.

This method was taken by Health Products Corporation of helping the druggist to get the new 50c Medioline Cabinet Size bottle before the public, a 25c package of Dillard's Aspergum being offered free with every 50c bottle of Feen-a-mint. The combination value was 75c and offered to the public at 48c. The deal was widely advertised in over 3,000 newspapers and in full pages in such leading publications as Liberty, Railroad Man's, Detective Fiction and Argosy.

Before the combination unit was put on sale nationally careful sales tests were made in two cities both of which indicated a wide consumer acceptance of the deal which went on sale September 15 and closed in the trade November 1.

It was the aim of the manufacturers in supplying this deal to give the retail druggist a unit which would be a Christmas gift to the customer. The unit was advertised in over 3,000 newspapers and in full pages in such leading publications as Liberty, Railroad Man's, Detective Fiction and Argosy.

Within the organization the drive was handled as an army campaign with the four division sales managers of the corporation acting as brigadier generals on various fronts. The salesmen in turn were ranked equally as privates at the opening of the "war" winning their spurs from the tanks on the

To Probe Letter, Unsigned, About Teacher Abduction

PORT MORGAN, Colo., Dec. 12, (AP)—An unsigned letter mailed from San Francisco December 4 and purporting to be from a person who aided in the abduction of Miss Enid Marriott, Wiggins county school teacher, will be turned over to postal officials for investigation, Sheriff R. A. Johnson said Friday.

Details of the letter, made known Friday for the first time by Sheriff Johnson, included a statement by the writer he would commit suicide if Miss Marriott, missing since November 18, should be found dead.

The anonymous author said he had received $100 from M. G. McClanahan, a Nebraska farm hand, for assisting in abducting the school teacher. McClanahan is under arrest here but declines the letter was written by some one who is his enemy.

Box of Apples Proves Popular Christmas Gift

Like apples—they look beautiful under the tree—and if you give a whole box to a whole family, you are sure nobody's been left out!

The business man who does his Christmas shopping sitting at his desk sighs with relief at the suggestion, for they not only make distinctive gifts full of Christmas spirit, for his acquaintances, family and friends—but they are ideal remembrances for his employees at the holiday season.

Those who remember the less fortunate at Christmas time, too, are made happy by the pleasure they give when they give a box of apples.

Anyone who has ever seen an "Apple of Gold" Christmas gift is proving a big help to many a puzzled giver. As one harassed shopper points out, "Everybody old-time Christmas can't imagine a holiday festival without apples. He remembers great baskets of them about the room, shining and rosy; scarlet globes dangling from the Christmas tree side by side with gilded walnuts, pine cones, strings of popcorn, and red cranberries, apple pies, tarts and dumplings for holiday dinners; wood fires, and plates of shining apples passed around a merry circle. And last of all, Christmas stockings bulging with nuts, candy and bright red apples!

With the finest apples from such world-famous orchards as are in the state of Washington easily basis of the number of deals sold by each man.

At the end of the drive close to a half million units actually had been sold and delivered, and orders were still coming in from druggists who were experiencing a continued demand for the product.

ADVERTISING AIDS SELLING OF ZEMO

Relieves Skin Ailments
Many Users; Also Used for Pimples

With the coming of winter, Zemo has been alert to take advantage of new sales opportunities. Advertising is reaching 12,000,000 people through more than 600 daily newspapers, weeklies, magazines, posters, etc. The entire country is having its attention called to the relief and comfort given by Zemo.

Not only does Zemo relieve skin ailments and itching but it is used by increasing millions for pimple blotches and other skin blemishes and irritations. Chafed skin or skin irritated by cold or heat is quickly soothed by this healing preparation.

As a germicide, Zemo meets the government laboratory tests. It is strongly recommended for minor cuts, bruises, skin abrasions and bites; or where infection is likely to occur when these things are neglected.

The Zemo line gives druggists opportunity for three profitable transactions—Liquid Zemo, invisible for daytime use; Zemo Soap and Zemo Ointment for additional night treatment.

The trade's best customers are constantly seeing Zemo advertisement and a little pushing on behalf of the druggist means sure and steady profits.

Druggists "take" to attract displays which do not monopolize too much of their often all limited space. That is why "Pyramid of Health," which proving a salesman—without any, has made a big hit in the drug business.

Fill Radiator Carefully
Water should be poured into the radiator more carefully during the winter than when this operation is performed in summer. If your radiator is serviced with an antifreeze containing chemicals that eat the paint or enamel the splashing contents of the radiator may mar the finish of the hood. Even when the preparation used is bland and harmless like glycerine, care should still be exercised to avoid flooding the radiator and wasting the valuable anti-freeze through the overflow pipe.

RELIGIOUS TEST

AMERICA has room for every shade and degree of opinion; political, economic and religious. It will never be large enough, so long as liberty endures to shelter intolerance.

The constitution of the United States twice speaks out clearly on the question in words familiar to everyone versed in the fundamentals of the republic:

"No religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States."

And again:
"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

And yet Time magazine, reviewing presidential timber for 1932, reports that "unwritten laws" add to the qualifications the candidate must have that he be a "white male with no known criminal, immoral or undignified tendencies, preferably Protestant, preferably a holder of public office."

The author of these words probably remembers
the election of Herbert Hoover and several other presidential elections in the United States where freedom of religion stops where politics begin.

FOUR MILLION CAPITALISTS

JOSEPH S. McCoy, United States treasury actuary, estimates at 4,000,000 the "legion of capitalists" in the United States. One out of every 30 persons is the owner of corporate securities or bonds.

The number of stockholders has increased materially since the World war. Businesses have encouraged employees to buy stock in the concerns they work for on the theory that stockholders take a greater interest in the business. National prosperity has also accounted for the growth of the "legion of capitalists."

American stockholders are not all millionaires.
Less than 7 per cent of the outstanding corporation
stocks are held by millionaires, although 95 per cent of the wealthy obtain their income from stock dividends. There are some 100,000 widows solely dependent on stock dividends and many orphans are cared for in the same manner.

The character and psychology of the two classes is reflected in the preference of the city dweller for stocks and of the rural resident for government bonds. The one is ever progressive and the other conservative in all things.

On the face of these figures and facts it is not surprising that labor troubles have been reduced to a minimum here. As long as American workers are privileged to share twice—through wages and dividends—in the earnings of their labor they will leave communism and socialism to dreaming drones.

FOREIGN INVESTMENTS

GRUMBLINGS are again heard about the "huge American investments" in Europe and the possibility that they may constitute a dangerous political and economic menace. Little or nothing is heard about the large foreign investments in the United States and there is no apparent disposition to regard them as a menace.

There is so little difference between our investments abroad and foreign investments here that Europe's fears are a bit difficult to understand.
As a better understanding of the true situation, less attention will be paid to protests against the faring abroad of American dollars.

As a matter of fact these foreign holdings in the United States represent a part of the share which other nations have in American prosperity.
It has often been pointed out that American prosperity contributes to the prosperity of the rest of the world. For the same reason Europe loses here business depression inflicts losses here.

Europeans who have billions invested in American enterprises are doing nothing at home to hurt business on this side of the Atlantic. On the contrary, they will aid us in our recovery of economic stability, knowing that it means dollars in their pockets and dollars to aid in business at home.

Apparently congress is to use up most of the next three months discussing whether or not there ought to be an extra session in the spring.—Worcester Daily Telegram.

GREATER RESTRICTION ON ADMITTING ALIENS TO U. S. IS ADVOCATED

By Hamilton Fish, Jr.
Congressman from New York
RESTRICTION of immigrants from countries having no diplomatic relations with the United States, including Soviet Russia, is proposed in a bill introduced in the house. The reason is the difficulty of deporting alien communists to a country not recognized by the United States.

I am not an alarmist, and do not consider the revolutionary doctrines of the communists in the United States to constitute a menace at the present time to our Republican form of government. But they are a real threat to certain industries, such as textiles, coal mining, garment workers, marine transportation, fur workers, and are beginning to cause considerable trouble through the creation of nuclei and the issuance of shop papers in the automobile industry and in numerous manufacturing centers throughout the nation. In the farming state of Minnesota the communists polled this year an average of approximately 10,000 votes for their state ticket.

The growth, propaganda and activities of the communists in the United States has been steadily increasing since 1925, when the department of justice was deprived of its powers to deal with the revolutionary activities of the communists.

Since then the communists have taken the leadership in three big textile strikes, at Passaic, New Bedford and Gastonia, involving about 40,000 workers, not for the purpose of helping to secure increased wages for the employees, but to incite a revolutionary spirit through a continuation of the strike.
The same tactics were followed in other communist strikes in various industrial centers of the country.

What are the facts of our trade with Russia?
Back in 1913, when we recognized the Imperial Russian government and were on friendly relations with it, our total export trade with Russia amounted to less than $20,000,000, and last year, without recognition of the Soviet government, we exported $16,000,000 worth of goods to Russia. The bulk of the Soviet trade is constantly dangled before the bulging eyes of our manufacturers and they are told that if they will only use their influence to bring about the recognition of Russia there will be an immediate market for all their goods.

The fact is that without recognition we are doing four times as much trade with Russia as we did when we recognized the czar's regime. But, on the other hand, Great Britain and Germany, both of whom have recognized the Soviet government, are doing four times less trade than they were before the World war.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

VICTORIAN AGE DEFENDED

From the Texarkana Gazette:

THERE is an impression that the ladies of the Victorian age are fainter on the slightest provocation, but in her defense of that age, Lady Leonfield, 84-year old dowager, emphatically denies both this and the charge of indolence. "I can assure the public," she writes "that we never faint, unless from illness, that we rode, even hunted, that we walked,
that we played games—though neither tennis nor golf; and if croquet be objected to as non-athletic, I would ask any modern girl to stand with a mallet in her hands, often for four hours at a stretch, in the hope of being able, when her turn came, to drive a ball through an iron hoop. It was a test of endurance if not of active exercise." She amusingly adds that "the long afternoons spent in croquet didn't discourage flirtation."

It is admitted, however, that the institution of the chaperon was strictly in force. "It would have been considered unthinkable," she says, "for a girl to go out with a man at any time unless engaged to him; indeed, girls were not allowed to walk out alone in London except with a maid, nor even to go in a four-wheeler without a footman on the box.
An ombus was, of course, unthinkable." Yet the strictness could relax and give youth its chance.
"Our chaperons," she read, "often had a friend of their own and left one at liberty to talk to a friend of one's choice." No doubt there was opportunity too even for a swift but ecstatic kiss. Even crinolines had its good points, for it allowed unfettered liberty to one's legs," members of course expected to be invisible as well as unmentionable. Lady Leonfield's account is pleasing in its loyalty to her times.

PRICE'S PONDERINGS

Homer Price in Marshall News:

A MARSHALL boy has found out since last Christmas that there isn't any sure enough Santa Claus. At least he thinks there isn't but I'll argue with him all day. But anyway he doesn't believe there is any such Old Saint and so the other day he went to his mother to inquire what he was going to get for Christmas. She told him that times were mighty hard, and money very scarce and she didn't know what, if anything he might get. The boy pondered a moment, shook his head and said:
"I believe I'll hang up my stocking again. There might be a Santa Claus after all."

I was never able to fully determine whether the average evangelist was telling about his former meanness to the congregation in a spirit of penitence or of bragadocio. Personally I would rather have a man point me to the narrow way who hasn't found it necessary to wallow around in the sloughs
of dissipation before he struck the right trail.

A doctor said to me yesterday: "I have a number of men who have confidence enough in me that if I was to tell them a serious operation was necessary to prolong their lives would not hesitate to go under the knife, but it's not likely one of them would quit the use of tobacco if I should tell him his life would be shortened if he didn't quit. In all my practice I don't think I ever got a man to discontinue smoking or drinking. In fact I ought not smoke myself but—have you got a match?"

punch gets there these days. Gene Tunney has been

THE CHRISTMAS CAROLERS

ALL of US

By Marshall Maslin

Keep Going!
Often, too often, in my life I have been a bad sport. I have whined, I have complained, I have rallied against life and said it was treating me badly.

I have called it a fly-trap. I have thought men and women
mean and worthless and shallow.
I have been afraid. I have feared poverty and sickness and loneliness and I have gone down into hells of self-pity and self-disgust.
I have hated my own pessimism,
even as I soothed and encouraged it.

And then, from somewhere, I have felt a Lift. My spirits have risen. I have seen a glow on the faces of men and women. I have seen a gleam on the dull horizon and I have come up out of the darkness—to be ashamed of myself and to wonder why I was so foolish, so blind, so lacking in faith, so ungrateful for this chance to be alive.

I do not know why we fall into those ghastly pits. I cannot tell you what brings us back from them into quiet and thankful sanity once more.

But I know that this happens to me and I am sure that it must happen to everyone else. There must be solid men and women who are "always the same," who have "even dispositions" and who never lose heart and never change. Some people SEEM to be like that, and until the Lift comes along.

A NEW YORKER AT LARGE

NEW YORK (P)—The pet show
in Madison Square Garden revealed that cats still are extraordinarily popular in local parlors. Scores of these animals were on display.
One of the most popular art exhibitions of the winter was the one which offered the paintings of cats by Fujita, the Japanese artist.
He came over for the show, and every day was moaning because he had left his favorite cat—a snow white, silver creature—behind in Paris.

Ann Andrews, the actress, is an enthusiastic connoisseur of cats.
She usually has a dozen or more around her apartment, and she keeps a special maid to take care of them.

Helen Westley is another stage star who collects cats. She has given a standing order to food shops in a certain vicinity to feed
all stray cats and charge the bill to her. When she goes for a walk
she carries a bottle of milk to feed
any cats she might meet.

Constance Collier has a cat
which is famous in both New York

Diet and Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D., Author of "THE HUMAN BODY"

"The ordinary diet consisting of meats, eggs and cereals, including bread, produces an acid ash.
If the diet contains in addition a moderate amount of milk, potato, vegetables and fruits, the acid
element is reneutralized. The acid ash has become a popular theory. The belief that the acid ash
foods are responsible for a variety of complaints or symptoms such as stomach hyperacidity, lastitude, biliousness, acid mouth,
headaches, neph-
ritis and high blood pressure carries on far afield. These symptoms and others of similar character are as frequently encountered among patients whose urines are neutral or alkaline. Among those who drink little water concentration of the urine with increase of acidity is common."

The above quotation is taken from a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Copper in the Food
Apparently we need some copper in our diet. Hart and his associates at the University of Wisconsin have shown that if there is a deficiency of copper in our food there is a lack of assimilation of iron. And iron is needed for the blood. Lack of copper may, therefore cause anemia.

However, do not go and chew
up a piece of copper wire as soon as you hear this. You can easily get too much. There is plenty of copper in the foods your ordinarily eat. Wheat germ, and therefore white bread, has the most. Almonds, oats, kidney beans, asparagus, maize, lentils

and barley all have good quantities.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
L. H. V. Indianapolis: "Please give the name of a good book on calories for the layman."

Answer: What seems to me
one of the most useful books on diet for the layman is "Feeding the Family," by Mary Swartz Rose. It is published by the MacMillan company, New York. It is not only thoroughly reliable as to its facts; it also meets practically all needs. Some of the chapter headings are: "Food for the Adult Man," "Food for the Adult Woman," "Food for the Baby,"
"Food for a Two-Year-Old Child," "Food for Children of 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, etc., Years of Age," "Food After Fifty," "Food
for the Sick and Convalescent."
There is a complete food tables,
and a list of the vitamin content of foods. The economic factor is given attention and there are many hints about cooking and serving the best meals at the least cost.

A smaller book with a more limited scope, dealing, as its title implies, only with diet, in diseased conditions, is called "Food for the Sick," by Dr. Solomon Strouse. It is published by W. B.
Saunders company, Philadelphia.

Guiding Your Child

CHRISTMAS PLAYTHINGS

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne
Between now and Christmas
much money will be spent on children's playthings. In this burst of yearly extravagance there is need of a special thoughtfulness about the things which are so frequently unsuitable to the particular children to whom they are given, that the money spent is virtually wasted.

Good toys are generally fairly expensive; but many of the most expensive ones are not always good.
Take, for instance, the common mistake of buying for a little girl
the great big beautiful doll that is almost as big as she is. The sheer size of it is too large for the little mother who wants a baby that she can cuddle, carry about, feed and dress with ease.

Then again, there are all sorts of toys, excellent in themselves but unsuitable only for children who have arrived quite definitely at certain levels of development. A toy that would certainly delight an eight-year-old may fall quite flat when given to a child of six.

It is important, too, to choose toys that will stimulate different kinds of activity. Some for imaginative play, others for skill of hand and the exercise of the large muscles, others which will lead to construction, and still others that will give an impetus to social play.

Parents may profitably spend a little time discovering just what will be the right toys for this Christmas.

An extremely helpful pamphlet called "Play and Playthings," obtainable from the Child Study Association of America gives concise information on play material along with lists of specific playthings suitable for boys and girls at different age levels.

WASHINGTON BYSTANDER

whose business carries them often to the capitol grounds have become familiar recently with the sight of a man, dressed more with an eye to comfort than to style, trudging about the place on per-

Always he is puffing away at a

One day he may be seen prowling
about the site of the new su-

Next day it may be the tumbled earth and busy steam shovels over where the new extension of the

his attention.

It is thus that Owen Roberts, Ju-puts in his spare time. There is very little of aloof dignity about him.

He bids fair to become the great street. One might not know who they were, meeting them that way but there would be no doubt that each was some one of importance.

Look and manner reflect that.

Justice Roberts, however, probably has many a street conversa-

that sort. The story of his casual

Corsicana-Amarillo, Tyler-Austin In Semi-Finals Today

MAROONS, LIONS MAY PLAY BEFORE CROWD OF 10,000

Take Final Workouts Friday; Maroons Crippled By Loss of Nelson

AUSTIN, Dec. 12, (P)—The Austin high Maroons and the Tyler Lions went through final workouts Friday afternoon for their semi-final game Saturday which will decide the opponent of the winner of the Corsicana-Amarillo game for the state high school football championship.

The Lions arrived shortly after noon and, after taking a rest at their hotel, went to the scene of Saturday's fray for a signal drill and limbering up exercises. They were followed by the Maroons.

Coach Benny Strickland, Maroon mentor, said he was not confident of victory and admitted the Tyler outfit will be a hard one to crack. The Maroons, according to Strickland, are in bad shape as the result of the loss of Buster Nelson, captain and star halfback, who will be out with an injury to his shoulder. Strickland said this would seriously handicap the Reds since a large portion of the plays have been built around Nelson.

Osborne, who has been on the sidelines for several weeks due to injuries, has recovered and will be ready to go Saturday afternoon. Hodges was a consistent ground sander in earlier games and probably will start at Nelson's position. A crowd estimated at between 8,000 and 10,000 persons was predicted.

A special train, carrying 500 Tyler fans, will arrive shortly after noon.

Strickland said he would start Brooks and Ekstrom at ends; Helf and Kilgore at tackles; Word and Davis at guards; Parker at center; Beard at quarterback; Helluma and Hodges or Blackmore at the halfback posts and Donaldson at fullback.

G. A. Foltz, Lion coach, said he expected to start Harville and H. Gregory at ends; D. Wilcox and Glass at tackles; L. Wilcox and John Wilcox at guards; A. Johnson at center; Harry Johnson, quarterback; C. Gregory, captain, and J. Morris at the halfbacks, and A. Hill at fullback.

SACRIFICE FLY RULED OUT BY BASEBALL BODY

Also Rule to Allow Only Two Bases On Ball Bouncing Out

NEW YORK, Dec. 12, (P)—The sacrifice fly was legislated out of existence Friday by baseball's joint rules committee, meeting in the Hotel Commodore.

From now on when a batter lifts a lofty fly to the outfield and enables a runner to advance a base he will not be credited with a sacrifice and he will be charged with a time at bat.

Proponents of the change insisted the sacrifice fly had no place in the rules. They pointed out that in most cases batters had no intention of lifting a high fly to the outfield so the runner could advance a base. Instead most of them were swinging for home runs or a hit of some description. Therefore, they argued, he should be charged with a time at bat just as he is when he lifts a fly which does not permit a runner to advance or which comes with the bases empty. The rule was adopted.

Another important change limits the runner to two bases when the ball bounces off the playing field. This rule was designed to prevent "trick home runs" made when the ball took a hop into the stands.

The National league rule saying that a ball shall be judged fair or foul where it last leaves the playing field and not where it is last seen was given American league approval and thus becomes a standard regulation.

The pitching rules, especially in respect to the stance the hurler should take before delivering the ball, were clarified.

The committee also decided to revise and clarify the rules in general such as the football rules committee redefined the football regulations.

The sessions of the rules committee closed the annual minor league mid-winter meetings. Most club owners and managers had left for their homes Friday night although a few planned to remain over for the Army-Navy football game.

Meet Shows Beyond Doubt Who Rules Southwest Loop

DALLAS, Dec. 12, (P)—One point which there had been considerable disagreement, was settled very definitely at the meeting of the Association of Texas Colleges here Thursday.

It now can be said without fear of a successful contradiction that the faculty committee of seven, presided over by Dr. Daniel Penick of the University of Texas, is ruling and will continue to rule Southwest conference athletics. Any individual or groups of individuals who might have imagined they had their hands on the steering wheel simply were mistaken.

Ever since Thursday's star session, it had been announced quite confidently by those "in the know" that the faculty committee would rescind its pet rule penalizing seniors who play in post-season football skirmishes. It was all out and dried it was said, and the vote would be 5 to 2 to abolish the statute.

Imagine the surprise when it seeped from the "big" room that the rule had been ratified by the same vote as last year, 4 to 2. Officials of the Dixie classic, vitally interested in abolishing the dictum, refused to take the word of this reporter and a companion and went to find out for themselves.

They thought the governing body later granted the plea of President Joe Uday of the Dixie classic that the rule be waived for this season. It was made clear that it would stand henceforth.

"We are not saying that the boys can not play in post-season games," explained a spokesman for the group. "They can play all they want to. But they will not be eligible for other winter and spring sports."

As a result, the annual charity tussle here on January 1 will be enlarged in its scope next season. Instead of a Southwest-Midwest contest, it will become "North-South" affair. Members of the South team will be drawn from the entire region below the Mason and Dixon line. One observer expressed the opinion that the action of the faculty committee Thursday might prove the "making" of the annual contest.

At the big meeting, Learned that Southern Methodist will not play such a rip-tearing intersectional grid schedule next year as had been planned. The conference fathers suggested, in a nice way, that the Ponies hold it down.

Coach "Pug" Daugherty expects to have a fair basketball team at Rice, but regrets the loss of his two star forwards, Hart and Hess. Jimmy St. Clair said his Southern Methodist quintet would be stronger than last year, though lacking an experienced center.

President Sexton of Centenary college, aged but sports-minded, was confident his Gentlemen would be taken into the Southwest

Boy's Tale Leads To Discovery of Tragedy

FRANKLIN, W. Va., Dec. 12, (P)—A five year old boy clad only in underclothing, tramped four miles in sleet and snow to the home of neighbors near here Friday and said he had "lost" his mother. The neighbors carried the child back to his home and found the mother and a daughter had been burned to death in a fire that destroyed their dwelling. The victims of the fire were Mrs. Fred Simpson, 35, and her three year old daughter. Authorities believe that Mrs. Simpson had carried the boy out of the house when she discovered the fire and returned and died with the young child.

Dragons Meet Hugo Quintet Tonight In Season's Opener

The 14 in college basketball competition for the 1930-31 season will be pried off tonight at 7:45 o'clock when the Paris Junior College Dragons tangle with the Hugo "Packwoods," an independent team, at Fair Park Coliseum. The Dragons are in splendid condition for this game, despite the fact they have been working out only one week, and prospects for a green and gold victory are bright.

Coming to Paris with a strong array of talent, including a number of college and university stars, the Hugo team will give the Dragons plenty to think about for the 40 minutes of actual playing time. Heading the visiting quint will be the flashy LeFevres, without a doubt the outstanding basketball player to show on a Paris court at any time. This boy does everything a basketball player is asked to do and does it well. Playing at center, he is down the court for many "crip" shots during the game and is one of the hardest men to keep from scoring anywhere. He is death on those crip shots, but does not confine his activity to this phase of the game. His passing and floor work are of extraordinary nature, and if the locals expect to emerge with a victory tonight they must halt the scoring rampages of this brilliant performer.

In addition to LeFevres the inveterate host of other capable men in Lively, coach of the Hugo high school team, McCafferty, former Southeastern Normal star and coach of the Hugo Junior high school, and the McDonald brothers, former Oklahoma Aggie lights. These alone will furnish enough opposition through sheer ability to give the Dragon machine a real test in this opening tilt.

Looking over the local prospects the optimism expressed in the college for a winning quint this winter is observed to be well justified. Returning from last year's team are McMillan, center, Meadlin, Withers and Patterson, who alternate at guard and forward. Hatfield forward, O. B. Briggs guard and Moore, who also alternates between the forward and guard positions.

In addition to these men the Dragons have Clements, member of the academy championship Terrell Prep School last season, Paul Briggs and Bub McDowell, members of the 1930 Paris High quint, Lamar county champions, Joe Bell of Cunningham, an all-county forward for the past two seasons, Bennett, Hardy, former North Dallas and Dallas Athletic Club player, Mike Crouch and Warren Wooten from Idabel, Okla. high school, and Dunsie Watson, formerly of the East Texas Teachers' Training School quintet.

In the starting line-up tonight will probably be McMillan at center, Clements and Hatfield at forwards, and O. B. Briggs and Patterson at guards. There is a possibility Herdy and McMillan will open at forwards, with Paul Briggs and McDowell or Moore at guards and Withers at center. Regardless of which combination opens, the entire squad is due to get into the game for a time in order that the coaches may see how they perform under fire.

There will be the first of a series of games the Dragons will play before the Christmas holidays. After their return to school early next year the Dragons will launch their conference schedule, taking on the College of Marshall Tigers here Thursday and Friday, January 8 and 9.

TIGERS, SANDIES DUE TO CLASH IN OUTSTANDING TILT

CORSICANA, Dec. 12, (P)—Corsicana and Amarillo high schools will clash in their semi-final interscholastic league championship tilt on Tiger field here Saturday at 2:30 p. m. in the outstanding game of the season for this section.

The rival coaches, John Pierce of Corsicana and Blair Cherry of Amarillo, reported their charges in excellent physical condition, with full strength of both clubs available.

A special train, carrying 1,000 Amarillo Sandie followers, will arrive shortly before noon. The team was due to arrive late Friday night from Fort Worth, where it worked out on the Texas Christian university gridiron Friday afternoon.

The Corsicana jungle boasts, undefeated and untied this season, were prepared to spend their full force of power, strategy and aerial effectiveness against the running and passing attack boasted by the Golden Sandies, pride of the Panhandle.

The advance sale of tickets indicated there would be thousands of followers of the teams on hand when hostilities open between the giant teams, each averaging close to 175 pounds per man—as much as some college aggregations.

Ideal weather was forecast and highways had dried sufficiently to appeal to fans coming overland from a distance. Many West Texans already had arrived.

Winner of the game will oppose the victorious eleven in the Austin-Tyler game, to be played simultaneously in the state capital.

Corsicana had scored 430 points, compared to opponents' 38 in 11 games this season, but neutral critics were predicting a close fight.

Probable lineups: Amarillo: Floyd and Conaley, ends; Montgomery and Estes, tackles; Foster and Allen, guards; Glass, center; Fowler, quarter; Scanlan and Hancock, halves; Bufkin, fullback.

Corsicana: Stewart and Pryor, ends; Richardson and Speed, tackles; Stamps and Middleton, guards; Vanderlian, center; Hornback, quarter; Ross and Wilson, halves; Clarke, fullback.

Sandies Ready. FORT WORTH, Dec. 12, (P)—After a brisk workout at the T. C. U. stadium here Friday afternoon, the Amarillo Sandies doffed their football uniforms and headed for Corsicana where they meet the Tigers of that city Saturday in a semi-final game of the state high school gridiron race.

Amarillo presented a much larger line than expected. "We're in great shape and will be in there doing our best," declared Coach Cherry of the Sandies.

Both teams turned in lower totals than have been seen in the current series of tournaments. Coca-Cola getting only 1035 pins, Corner Drug store, 1811.

Matched for play next Tuesday night by Manager Christian are Ross Liff Motor company and Southern Ice & Utilities company teams. Admission to these tournaments is free and considerable interest is being shown.

Water Bills Past Due If not paid by the 15th service will be discontinued and penalty added.

TROPHIES, FEED FOR CHAMPIONS IN CAGE TOURNEY

Chamber of Commerce, Imperial Cafe Join in Banquet

"To the winner belongs the spoils" is especially true to the annual Lamar county basketball tournament for class B schools. Several business firms and other associations are cooperating and offering trophies to the championship cagers for 1930.

Johnson-Billingsley Hardware company has offered a basketball to the champs of the class B high schools.

The Lamar county chamber of commerce, cooperating with George Wall of the Imperial Cafe, will give a banquet to the winners of the class B basketball championship and the winners in the rural division, it was said Friday.

It has been the custom of the Imperial Cafe, through Mr. Wall, to give a banquet to the B winners each year, but with the Lamar county chamber of commerce assisting, it will be a joint affair this season, with the winners in class B and the rural districts participating.

This banquet will be served to the winners at the end of the basketball season, which will probably be some time in February.

"It is the scariest thing which nearly always do furnish the clues."

CHAPTER 38.
When Inspector Linscott and Bruce Armstrong returned to Alston Manor, Lady Dorothy and Lady Gwendolen were already at lunch. In spite of the exciting happenings of that morning, it was on the whole a silent meal, during which everyone appeared absorbed in his or her own thoughts.

"Lady Gwendolen, I would like to have a word with you," said "I'm glad," said the girl, with a smile. "The fact is, I was wishing I could have a talk with you. Let's go into the morning-room. It will be quiet there, and there will be little danger of being disturbed. "Do you mind my smoking?" asked the inspector when they had seated themselves in the large comfortable chairs. "It helps me to think."

"Not at all," Lady Gwendolen replied, with an effort at a laugh. "You may smoke seven cigars all at once if they'll only help you to solve the mystery and allow you to let Mr. Smith out."

"We're all anxious to do that," Lady Gwendolen said. The inspector assured her gravely. "And now, he observed, changing the tone of his voice to one of business, and sending vigorous puffs of smoke into the air, "what I want of you is this. I desire to spare your feelings as much as possible, of course. But I should like you to tell me everything you know of Lord Winston's past life in Canada. For I have a strong conviction that the murder was committed by a Canadian, certainly by someone who knew your brother in Canada."

"I have been thinking hard, and I've come to a similar conclusion," said Lady Gwendolen earnestly. "And I'm quite ready to tell all I know about poor Edward. My brother was an exceptionally honest, straightforward man; in fact, the kind that makes enemies—or friends, for that matter—easily."

"Thank you, Lady Gwendolen. Please continue."

"Well, as I was saying, I was rummaging through his things. And he was standing by and teasing me for being so very curious. And as I went on rummaging, I came across a small leather case, and on opening it I found myself looking at a knife, exactly like the one that killed my brother. You see, that is why I cried out on seeing it that it was Edward's; they were so exactly alike, as far as I can remember him, and I had never seen a similar one until that night." Her voice broke, but she immediately went on bravely. "I took it out of the case and studied it for a moment or two. My brother's back was turned on me at the time. Then suddenly he turned around, and when he saw what I was doing, his face grew quite ashen pale. 'Put that down, Gwendolene!' he shouted. 'I thought there was more alarm than variation in his voice,' she said. 'I remember, frightened me, and in my fright I dropped the knife on the floor, where it stuck on end. Then he walked over, picked up the knife, put it back in its sheath, then into the leather case, and without a word put it away. A few moments afterwards—how well I recall it all now—he turned to me more gently, and said: 'I am sorry, Gwendolene, that I have brought back unpleasant memories to you.'"

Lady Gwendolen raised. Her own mind seemed to be depressed by playing with tragic memories, too recent to be borne with equanimity. Tears struggled in her eyes, as she fought hard to control her feelings.

"And did he tell you what these unpleasant memories were?" Inspector Linscott prompted her gently.

"Yes, but not until some time afterwards. You see, I had to coax him to do it. It was consumed with curiosity, you see. And he finally consented. I will try to tell the story as near as possible in his own words."

"She spoke in a low voice, and the inspector moved his chair nearer so as to catch every word. "It appears," she began, "that in one of his hunting expeditions he picked up two fur-traders and chummed with them. They three agreed to go along together. It was his last hunting expedition—he was twenty then. It was when he got the knife—"

"but there, I'm anticipating my story. I must first tell you who the fur-traders were. The name of one was Pierre Lagrange."

"French," interrupted the inspector questioningly.

"Precisely," said Lady Gwendolen. "He was a nice French-Canadian with a drop of Red Indian blood in him, I believe. The other was Bruin Peters."

"What?" cried the inspector, almost springing from his chair. "Why, that is certainly curious! I mean about the initials of 'B. P.' But do go on!" The inspector was beginning to show such excitement as he had not shown since the case began.

"My brother," went on the narrator, "was much taken with Pierre, and he noticed an equal fondness in Pierre for him. But as the weeks went on, he began to observe a secret feud growing up between the two traders. This appears to have been due to the necessity for their ultimate sharing. As they were getting nearer and nearer to civilization, where the spoils were to be divided, the feud grew more and more open. Indeed, on one occasion, Edward appears to have saved Pierre's life, and it was in gratitude for this that Pierre begged Edward to accept his knife as a souvenir."

"In what way did he save Pierre's life?" asked Inspector Linscott.

"As I remember my brother told me it happened in this way," explained Lady Gwendolen. "He happened to be near some ice floes. Pierre was trying to catch some fish. Bruin Peters, evidently suspecting my brother's presence, was seen by Edward to steal quietly round some huge chunks of ice, which concealed Bruin from Pierre. His intention was quite evident. There was a knife in his hand. He had apparently meant to stab Pierre and push him over into the icy water. My brother, who was approaching from the opposite direction, faced the intended murderer, and whipped out his revolver, meaning to shoot if Bruin attempted to carry out his plan. Just then Bruin Peters looked up and saw Edward watching him. He immediately put away his knife, but not before he had flung at Edward a glance of intense hatred. My brother knew then that he had made a deadly enemy, a man who would neither forget nor forgive. For the rest of the journey he kept a sharp watch. A few days later they reached a trading post."

Lady Gwendolen paused for a moment, and it was evident that she was trying to recall accurately the story as her brother had told it. Inspector Linscott waited patiently. He was eager to hear the rest of the story, and see how it could be fitted in with his hypothesis about the mysterious Canadian, Willis Hanson.

"Here," resumed Lady Gwendolen, "Pierre Lagrange and Bruin Peters entered a saloon, where they stayed for some time, and apparently drank rather heavily. My brother, who was outside, saw them come out, and heard them quarrelling. Seeing trouble, he followed them as they walked across the snow. It was a moonlight night, and he could see the two figures plainly. He was a considerable number of yards behind them. They were too intent on their own affair to turn around. Suddenly he saw them at grips, he saw the flash of a knife, a wild lunge, and one man prone on the snow. He didn't know which of the two had been hurt, but a premonition told him it was Pierre. He began to run. The other, who was still alive, must have caught sight of him as he was running, for he turned and fled, disappearing behind the brow of the hill."

MONDAY MARKS 20TH SALES DAY

Started as Experiment In 1929, Event Has Become Popular

Monday, December 15, marks the twentieth monthly Farmers Sales and Trades Day since the inauguration of the event in May, 1929. Started merely as an experiment, the Sales and Trades Day has grown in volume and interest until it is recognized as one of the most successful projects ever launched here.

While it is primarily just what the name implies, a Farmers Sales and Trades Day, this monthly event has also grown into a get-together day, in which folks from the various communities of the Paris area meet, talk, trade, and otherwise enjoy themselves.

It speaks well for the co-operative spirit of Paris merchants that this day has grown into such a successful event. The event is prompted by the desire of Paris people to become better acquainted with their neighbors over the trade area.

Monday is the last trade day for the year of 1936, and it is expected that it will be the biggest and best of the many preceding big days. There will be hundreds of articles of merchandise offered for sale at auction, as well as live stock, poultry, automobiles, farm machinery.

Byron Kelly will again be on hand to conduct the auction.
